A black and white illustration of a massive dragon standing on a rocky, uneven terrain. The dragon has a long, segmented neck, a large head with prominent eyes and a small mouth, and a body covered in detailed scales. Its wings are large and bat-like, with visible veins. The dragon's tail is thick and tapers slightly. A small human figure stands at the bottom center of the frame, providing a sense of scale. Two speech bubbles are present: one on the right side of the dragon's head and one on the left side of its front legs.
